

Quality Data to Power Scholarly Communications

As scholarly communications become more interconnected, high quality data becomes more important. Ringgold's unique identifiers allow systems to exchange information more effectively, and our authoritative data means those systems are populated with trustworthy information.

Backed by Ringgold data for institutions and scholarly works, clients are better able to develop business intelligence, improve decision making, and more easily connect their publications to the broader research community.

Ringgold's expertise in identifiers and metadata can be applied to common challenges faced by organizations on all points of the scholarly continuum:

- Publishers
- Intermediaries
- Aggregators
- Membership associations
- Publishing service providers
- Funders & research institutions

Ringgold's mission:

To provide identifiers and structured data to power the efficient exchange of information throughout the scholarly research community.
